THE BLAINE LETTER.

How the Matter is Viewed at Washington.

THE CHANCES FOR STATEHOOD.

The Prominence of the Sugar Question—General Crucey—Epidemic of Grave Robberies.

WASHINGTON, February 13, 1888.

Special Correspondence of THE HERALD.

Blaine's declination of the Presidential nomination has been and is the talk of the city. Some of the obscure statesmen, who are just beginning life at the National Capital, appear to believe that the Plumed Knight meant just what he said, and are discussing the chances of Sherman, Gresham, Allison, Sheridan and other prominent Republican leaders. The old stagers, however, simply laugh at the letter, and say that the man from Maine is playing a foxy game, and that at the proper time, he will show his hand. The letter, it is believed, was written with a view of seeing just what effect it would have upon the Republican press of the country. There is not a Republican in either branch of Congress who takes the least stock in the Plumed Knight's epistle. They look upon it as a trick. One of the best things said about the letter was uttered by Judge Seney, a prominent Democratic member from Ohio.

"That letter," said he to THE HERALD correspondent, "is a very ingenious document. Read it between the lines, and it says: 'Please don't present my name to the convention, but nominate me when the enemy ain't looking.' In other words, James G. is after the nomination, and he will get it too, his letter to the contrary notwithstanding."

Nobody's voice is heard louder in the land than that of the hustler from the far West seeking admission for his Territory into the Union of States. Every Territory in the Union wants to be admitted, and the four stretching along the Canadian border line are particularly lively. The next election is close at hand, and whatever bill Congress passes will simply be an enabling act for the future admission of the Territories. As Mr. Springer, the great father for the Territories says, an enabling act simply encourages, it does not enable. "The people of Utah," said Mr. Springer, "did not wait for Congress to pass an enabling act. They enabled themselves, and without any action on the part of Congress, they have held their Territorial Convention, adopted a 'State Constitution, and now demand admission to the Union as a State. All this they have done at their own expense, and they had a perfect right to do it. Only if they had waited for Congress to pass an enabling act, they would have had all their expenses paid out of the United States Treasury." The log-rolling process is going on, and each Territory is seeking to be put into the scale as a balance weight to the admission of some other Territory. The fact that the House is Democratic and the Senate Republican, makes it probable that this process will be successful as to all, if success attends any of them. The Republican Senate would not be ready to pass a bill for the creation of a new State that promised to be Democratic without the perfect assurance of an offset, and the only practical assurance is the grouping together in one bill of all the Territories proposed to be admitted as States. This plan has been adopted, and the bill which Mr. Springer's committee will soon report to the House will provide for the admission of several Territories, possibly the whole four—Dakota, Montana, Washington, and New Mexico. Of these four Montana and New Mexico would be reasonably certain to be Democratic States; Washington too, might turn out that way. There is little hope for the Republican party in the rising Territories which are budding into Statehood.

A gentleman who has given the question of the organization of the Sugar Trust a good deal of study, says that there will be an advance of 2 cents a pound upon refined sugars, and the cost to the consumer in maintaining it for one year will be at least $50,000,000. In other words, with a production of 3,000,000,000 pounds, an advance of 2 cents per pound means a profit to the sugar refiner of $60,000,000 over and above the price of refined sugars ruling last year. This Sugar Trust is not quite satisfied with ruling the price of refined sugars, but go a step or two further; it proposes to burn the candle at both ends; that is, it can and has advanced the price of refined sugar, and it can and has reduced the buying and selling price of raw sugar. Cargoes of raw sugar recently arriving in Atlantic ports, especially at the port of New York, have found no sale except at a reduction amounting to an average rate of nearly or quite 1 cent per pound. The refiners, therefore, control the market for refined sugars as well as the market for raw sugar. You will be astonished when I tell you that the entire plant of cane sugar refineries in this country can be duplicated for considerably less than $20,000,000. The capital of the Sugar Trust is $80,000,000, and the stock is selling to-day at 85 cents on the dollar. If the price of refined sugars and the control of the market for raw sugars can be maintained as now, the Trust can make at least $30,000,000 within the next six months. In one year their profits will be $80,000,000; in two years, $120,000,000, and so on of infinitude.

It may be that the Pacific railroads and other land grant roads may have made a great deal out of the government's open-handed generosity, but it will be hard to find any other industry or enterprise under the laws by which a few individuals can, by raising the price of an article of prime necessity, pocket for themselves $80,000,000 a year, and take by so much out of the pockets of the consumers. It was William H. Vanderbilt, who, in a conversation some years ago, said: "The public be damned." The Sugar Trust people have not as yet been so bold as Vanderbilt, but they do put their fingers to their noses and say, "What are you going to do about it?"

The House committee on foreign affairs will, in a few days, favorably report a bill that has quite a story back of it. General Crucey, a Frenchman, fought with distinction during the war in the Union army. After the war closed, he went back to France, and during the Franco-Prussian struggle, when Paris was in the hands of the Commune, he came into notice again by protecting the property of the Bank of France from the attacks of the mob. He was next heard of in Turkey, and there, some years ago, he was employed by the American Consul-general to collect certain statistical information relating to trade and commerce, which was very valuable. When he had finished his work, the appropriation out of which his pay was to come had been exhausted, and there was no fund which could be drawn upon. Successive consuls-general and ministers have urged that the general be paid, and when Mr. Cox was the American minister to Turkey, he looked into the matter, and found that the general had rendered valuable services. He consequently introduced a bill for that purpose which was referred to the committee on foreign affairs, and which committee has decided to favorably report and recommend that General Crucey be paid $500.

The city is just at present suffering from an epidemic of grave-robbings. The "resurrectionists" carry on their horrible business nightly, and the police and cemetery authorities have not as yet succeeded in capturing one of the villains. Numerous bodies have been recovered from the various medical colleges by detectives, but all efforts to get on to the trail of the thieves have so far proved fruitless. The city is really much disturbed over the matter, and the first criminal that is caught will probably be made an example of.

A Sound Legal Opinion.

E. Bainbridge Munday Esq., County Atty., Clay Co., Tex., says: "Have used Electric Bitters with most happy results. My brother also was very low with Malaria Fever and Jaundice, but was cured by timely use of this medicine. Am satisfied Electric Bitters saved his life." Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a like testimony, saying: He positively believes he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters. This great remedy will ward off, as well as cure all Malaria Diseases, and for all Liver and Stomach Disorders. Price 50 cents per bottle. A. C. Smith & Co's. Drug Store.

LITERATURE.

THE PLEASURES OF LIFE. By Sir John Lubbock. Price 15 cents, post-free. J. F. Fitzgerald, Publisher, 21 East Fourth Street, New York.

The "consolation of philosophy" has been a frequent theme for students and thinkers. Sir John Lubbock might well have named this delightful series of essays, "The Consolation of Science and Learning." The author is no pedant, no bookworm, but a frank sympathizer with his fellows in the workaday world, discoursing of the duty of happiness, as well as the happiness of duty. Of books also he treats, and of friendship; of the "pleasures of travel," he writes most entertainingly, but the chapter entitled "the pleasures of home" is in style and in substance, the gem of the collection.

An Imperative Necessity.

What pure air is to an unhealthy locality, what spring cleaning is to the neat house-keeper, so is Hood's Sarsaparilla to everybody at this season. The body needs to be thoroughly renovated, the blood purified and vitalized, the germs of disease destroyed. Scrofula, Salt Rheum, and all other blood disorders are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the most popular and successful spring medicine.

TAX SALE.

WHEREAS, THE TERRITORIAL, School and County Taxes assessed against and upon the property of John Parker, for the year A. D. 1887, amounting to four Dollars and Eighty Cents, remain unpaid.

Therefore, L. G. Hardy, Collector for Salt Lake County, Utah Territory, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the provisions of an Act of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah, entitled, "An Act to Provide for the Revenue for the Territory of Utah and the several Counties thereof," approved February 22, 1878, and of the amendments thereto, have levied upon the following named property, to wit: Five (5) Acres (5x20) rods of Lot Three (3), Block Twenty-two (22), as platted in Plat "A," Salt Lake City Survey, and will sell the same or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the Taxes and Costs, at Public Auction, at the front door of the County Court House, Salt Lake City, on the 12th day of March, 1888, at 12 o'clock m.
